Disclaimer:

If you attend this class in-person or via a video/audio-conferencing app for any length of time, it is assumed that you have already read and agreed to the following:

The information in this class curriculum is strictly for educational purposes. By participating in this class, you are agreeing to hold harmless Greg Handleton, any/all guest speakers, any/all co-facilitators (any Clermont County employee or any community member), Juvenile Court of Clermont County (Ohio) and all offices/employees/officers employed in or by Clermont County (Ohio) or any of its departments, offices, officials, affiliates, or subsidiaries in relation to your use/misuse of any/some/all of the information, data, advice, input, resources, products, medications, examples, stories, strategies, tools, or any related information obtained during the course of one's active or passive participation in this class. While information is being made available through this class pertaining to specific treatments, resources, and strategies for assessing, handling, resourcing, and treating Autism Spectrum Disorder in some/any/all of its variations, this information is not medical advice or treatment, nor is it meant to be used in place of actual medical advice or treatment, nor is it meant to turn parents into licensed or qualified treatment providers at home. Before using any of the information in this curriculum it is incumbent upon the participant to seek input from and seek the face-to-face guidance of a licensed treatment provider who specializes in treating people with Autism Spectrum Disorder (and, ideally, other related developmental and neurological conditions) through in-office/face-to-face treatment sessions. Some of the protocols and/or products described herein have not been approved by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration (FDA). These just-mentioned caveats and limitations are especially true when it comes to strategies and/or treatments and/or interventions mentioned and described in this course that are or might be considered to be controversial, un-vetted, or otherwise anecdotal or hypothetical. Your course facilitator will do their best to point out which strategies or interventions are considered to be controversial, un-vetted, or otherwise anecdotal or hypothetical, however, it is incumbent upon the participant to make sure, before utilizing a strategy or intervention, if that strategy, intervention, or resource is considered by the majority of the medical and/or mental health treatment professions to be controversial, un-vetted, or otherwise anecdotal or hypothetical. All information provided is based on information available at a particular moment in time, understanding that it is not possible to access and/or share all relevant information available today, including information that might go against and possibly refute some/all of the information being presented in this class. None of the entities named in the first sentence, above, are responsible for negative consequences pertaining to participants sharing information with others at home, online, via social media apps, or in the community or pertaining to their attempts to guide others with information gleaned as a result of participation in this class. It is also possible that this curriculum contains errors of inclusion and/or errors of omission, meaning that certain pieces of information might be erroneous, incomplete, or both. Participants understand that nothing about this class prevents them from seeking out second opinions in relation to any/some/all of the information contained herein. You are 100% responsible for all outcomes based on the use/misuse of information contained herein.
